AMUSEMENTS.

STAIN OF GUILT.

—The Courier-Journal, says: The story deals with an abduction and the villainous plots that grow from it, and the contest between the criminals and the law, between the wronging and the wronged waxes hot and furious to the end. Mr. Mathews has struck a

MISS MATTIE LOCKETT.

popular note in his melodrama, and the earnest applause, the cheers and general enthusiasm that greeted it yesterday gave proof the people's relish and the play's undoubted success.

The company, too, is above the average.

—Ted. E. Faust's Superb Minstrels will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, in this city, on Tuesday, Sept. 29th.

The company is a large one and are making good everywhere. Their spectacular first-part is undoubtedly as fine as one as has been seen, while the natty uniforms worn by the company are new and attractive. The music is all high class and affords the company an excellent opportunity to display their ability as vocalists.

The ever popular Paris favorite,
"Gov." Bowen, will be seen on the end, and he comes to us this season, with a goodly amount of witticisms, which he will deliver in his usual good way.
"Gov." has a bright future before him in the minstrel world, and he will certainly meet with a hearty welcome by his old friends here.

DARE-DEVIL DOROTHY.

—The London, England, Telegraph,
in speaking of "Dare-Devil Dorothy" recently, and which is to be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night, says: "Anyone who witnessed the immense audiences at the Royal Theatre last night, where the dramatic novelty was again seen for a return engagement, could not fail to have been impressed with the tremendous popularity of the play with the public. For three or four years this remarkable play has been on the stage and yet the interest and watchfulness of the spectators was greater than at its first presentation here. The reason for all this can easily be traced. In the first place the story and plot is a powerful one and is told with so large an amount of human traits that it appeals strongly to all classes. But the dramatic work is not all in 'Dare-Devil Dorothy,' in fact it is only half of the production, the other half being occupied with the introduction of a very strong musical comedy feature. In fact the combination includes besides a strong dramatic company, a splendid musical or comic opera company and also a number of well-known vaudeville people, as in the fourth act of the play a novel circus scene is introduced in which a specialty performance takes place."

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Jury Finds Curtis Jett Guilty of Jim Cockrill's Murder.

Col. Blanton Will File a Motion For a New Trial—In Case It is Overruled the Case Will Then Be Appealed.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 23.—At 5:10 p. m. Tuesday afternoon the death sentence was brought in by the jury against Curtis Jett, on trial for the assassination of James Cockrill, which had been out since 2:44 p. m. Judge Osborne and the crowd had begun to think that a hung jury was the result of their deliberations, and the judge ordered the jury to be brought in that he might hold them over until Wednesday. They sent back word that they would be in inside of five minutes, and they filed slowly in at that time. They took their accustomed seats. The names of the jurors were ordered called, and then the judge asked them if they had rendered a verdict, and they said they had; and it was presented to the clerk of the court. Clerk T. J. Robinson read, "We the jury find the defendant guilty and fix his punishment at death."

A terrible quiet reigned for a few moments. Jett's mother had gone away earlier under the impression that no verdict would be reached, and the verdict of death, coming in a little more than two hours after the jury was out, was a surprise to every one in the house. Jett sat quiet and his lower lip trembled and he slowly turned pale. His mouth quivered. Attorney Blanton asked that the jury be polled, which was done. The judge asked each juror when his name was called if that was his verdict. Each man replied that it was his own verdict. Elijah McKinney was the foreman of the jury. He has been a magistrate of the county in years past, and is a quiet, determined man.

Judge Osborne then ordered the crowd to go out quietly, and they left. He then ordered the defendant into the custody of the deputy sheriffs, who crowded about him, when the death sentence was read.

Col. Blanton will file grounds and a motion for a new trial Wednesday morning and then in case the judge overrules the grounds and motion he will appeal the case to the court of appeals at Frankfort, Ky.

Jackson, Ky., Sept. 23.—Judge Jas. Hargis Tuesday night refused to make a statement in regard to the infliction of the death penalty against his nephew, Curtis Jett. Relatives and intimate friends of J. E. Marcum express great satisfaction. People not directly connected with the case avoid talking for publication lest they incur the displeasure of the Jett faction. The verdict, however, was anxiously awaited, the scene of the Marcum and Cockrill assassinations, for which Jett is convicted.

GEN. CHAFFEE'S ANNUAL REPORT Makes Suggestions in Regard to Soldiers' Uniforms.

Washington, Sept. 23.—The annual report of Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, the commanding general of the department of the east, urges that after the adoption of a uniform it shall be adhered to without constant changes and alterations. Gen. Chaffee states that the time seems opportune for the adoption of a pack in lieu of the blanket roll for foot troops. He describes the present condition as creditable. The blanket roll, in his opinion, is an inconvenient thing. He also recommends that the cartridge belt be carried on braces in order that the weight may be transferred to the shoulders. Seven officers and 1,483 men were tried by general court-martial during the year. Two officers and 79 men were acquitted. The number of men tried for desertion was 398. The number tried by summary court was 16,142, of which 2,548 were convicted of drunkenness.

PANAMA CANAL TREATY.

It Is Feared at the State Department That It Is Dead.

Washington, Sept. 23.—When the state department closed Tuesday at 4 o'clock it was agreed that the Panama canal treaty was dead, although eight hours yet remained within which the Colombian congress might take affirmative action upon it. Nothing, however, had been received during the day, either from Minister Beaupre, at Bogota, or from Mr. Herran, the Colombian charge here, which gave the slightest hope of a favorable issue. A report is current here that the Colombian congress, in secret session, has clothed President Marroquin with full power to negotiate a treaty. If this report should turn out to be true, President Marroquin, who is counted a friend of the treaty, could proceed untrammelled by the fear of future reckoning with his congress. In any event, President Roosevelt must now take the next step. He can elect to proceed under the Spooner act and take up the Nicaraguan route or he can allow matters to drift for the present in the hope that a way may yet be found to straighten out the present difficulties in the path of the Panama route.

Contrary to his custom during the summer, Acting Secretary Adee, of the state department, remained in the city Tuesday night in order to be on hand to act promptly on any information which might come from Mr. Beaupre regarding canal matters at Bogota. Up to half-past 9 o'clock, however, nothing had been received. Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge, also waited anxiously for news from his government, but likewise was disappointed. Colombia, it is known, is anxious to keep alive the canal negotiations. What form her new proposition with that object in view will take is not known in Washington. One interesting feature in connection with the legislative situation in Colombia is the fact that the terms of one-third of the members of the senate, numbering nine, will expire on the 20th day of next July, when the life of the present congress ends. These nine senators, it is said, are adverse to the canal treaty. The hope of the advocates of the treaty will be to elect senators in their place who are favorable to the convention. It is expected that the campaign for the legislatures will be made on this issue.

WENT ON THE ROCKS.

United States Training Ship Alliance Aground at Race Rock.

New London, Ct., Sept. 23.—The United States training ship Alliance is aground at Race rock. The ship went upon the rock late Tuesday afternoon and, although she is apparently hard and fast, she is in no danger. At 6 o'clock Tuesday evening her water line was two feet out of water. The sea is smooth and unless there is a sudden change in weather conditions the ship will be safely floated.

The tug Alert offered to assist the Alliance, but her captain declined the proffered services. A United States monitor is standing by the stranded vessel.

It has been decided to make the cruises of three months' duration instead of six, as has been the practice.

BULGARIAN DEMANDS.

Turkey Shows Signs of Yielding to Them.

In the Meantime Devastations By Fire and Sword Continue, in Many Instances Persons Being Slowly Roasted Alive.

London, Sept. 23.—The Balkan situation Wednesday presents a somewhat puzzling aspect. Turkey is showing signs of yielding to the Bulgarian demands, and it is evident from the daily meeting of the council of ministers at Yildiz Kiosk that some sort of negotiations are in progress with the object of averting war.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Constantinople these councils concern two possibilities—either to make an arrangement satisfactory to the Macedonians or obtain from the great powers promises of neutrality if it is found impossible to avoid a war.

Apparently both Turkey and Bulgaria are anxious to repudiate having taken the initiative in the negotiations.

The Sofia correspondent of the Daily Telegraph asserts that the overtures came from Turkey and were welcomed by the Bulgarian minister on the condition that deeds were substituted for words and that the cessation of wholesale massacres should become an accomplished fact.

He adds that a specific solution, if it comes, will emanate from Constantinople, where the Bulgarian representatives are invested with full power and negotiations are said to be proceeding satisfactorily.

The same correspondent says in the meantime devastations by fire and sword continue and the Bulgarian government has received from trustworthy sources a gruesome tale of massacres, tortures, indignities and burnings, in many instances the victims being slowly roasted alive.

The assertion is made in another Sofia telegram that the sultan will issue an irade on Thursday, granting the demand for a mixed commission, but this statement is not confirmed and would seem to be negated by the dispatches from Constantinople.

A Monastir correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, writing September 15, says the Bulgarian list of villages pillaged and burned reaches a total of 104.

According to a dispatch from Odessa the whole Russian Black Sea fleet is kept on a war footing in readiness for any eventuality.

A TRAIN HOLD-UP.

Four Robbers Blew the Safe Door But Failed to Get Bootie.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 23.—The Burlington flyer, from Omaha, was held up at Dillon creek, a few miles north of St. Joseph, at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. There were four of the train robbers. One is said to have flagged the train with a red light. As soon as the engineer stopped he and his fireman were covered by one of the men, while the others proceeded to the express car and demanded that the door be opened. The express messenger refused to comply. After shooting at the car, the robbers pried off the door of the car and climbed in.

The messenger commenced shooting, but was quickly overpowered, after which the robbers turned their attention to the safe. A charge of dynamite was placed against the door and exploded. The safe door was blown off, but in the explosion one of the robbers was badly hurt. Passengers on the cars, hearing the noise, rushed out of the day coach and to the express car. The robbers seeing that there were too many men to attack, fled into the fields along the track and escaped.

BECAME A GOOD CITIZEN.

Pardoned For a Crime Committed Seventeen Years Ago.

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 23.—Seventeen years ago William Hedrick was sent to the Missouri penitentiary from Butler county to serve three years for grand larceny. He escaped from the penitentiary after serving six months and located in Arkansas, where he married and became a respected farmer, rearing a family of five children. After living 17 years in Arkansas, dreading each day to be arrested, he was discovered and brought back here this year to serve out his time.

Gov. Dockery Tuesday, after reviewing the case, decided to give him his liberty in consideration of his endeavor to be a good citizen. It is the first instance on record at the Missouri penitentiary where a man received a pardon after an attempt to escape.

Texas Finds a Remedy.

Fate, Tex., Sept. 21.—Texas has seldom, if ever, had such a profound sensation as that caused by the introduction recently of a new remedy for kidney diseases. This remedy has already been tried in thousands of cases, and in almost every case the results have been wonderful.

Henry Vaughan, of Rural Route No. 3, Fate, says of it: "I suffered with Kidney Trouble for over 18 months. I was very bad and could get nothing to help me till I heard of the new remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills. I began to use these pills, and very soon found myself improving. I kept on and now can say I am absolutely cured and free from any symptom of my old trouble."

"I am very glad I heard of this wonderful remedy and I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney trouble to try it, for I know it will cure."

Her Degree of Courage.

Amie had been suffering from toothache for several days. At last she consented to go with her papa to the dentist. When she was starting, her mamma said: "Now, dearest, be a brave little girl. Show fortitude, and mamma will be proud of you."

In due time Amie returned. "And did you show fortitude?" mamma inquired. Amie hesitated. "It hurted awful, mamma; I guess (reflectively) I showed about twenty-tude."—Kansas City Journal.

TRIED BY TIME.

Eugene E. Lario, of 751 Twentieth Avenue, ticket seller in the Union Station, Denver, Col., says:

"You are at liberty to repeat what I first stated through our Denver papers about Doan's Kidney Pills in the summer of 1899, for I have had no reason in the interim to change my opinion of the remedy. I said when first interviewed that if I had a friend and acquaintance suffering from backache or kidney trouble I would unhesitatingly advise them to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I was subject to severe attacks of backache, always aggravated if I sat long at a desk. It struck me that if Doan's Kidney Pills performed half what they promised they might at least help. This induced me to try the remedy. It absolutely stopped the backache. I have never had a pain or twinge since."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Lario will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

THE POLITICAL CRISIS.

King Edward a Ruler Instead of a Figurehead.

Every Detail of the Negotiations in the Filling Up of the Vacancies in the Ministry Must Be Submitted to Him.

London, Sept. 24.—The political crisis has taken on a phase which lends to the present situation an historical and constitutional importance of almost unprecedented interest. The king has interfered, not unconstitutionally or beyond the powers vested in the crown, but in the exercise of his prerogatives to an extent never dreamed of in the Victorian era.

Premier Balfour's continued presence at Balmoral has given rise to much surmise and comment, but it can be said definitely that it is due to the king's determination not to assent to the formation of a new cabinet until thoroughly satisfied that its personnel and combination are such as to ensure the efficient carrying on of the affairs of the empire pending the resumption of parliament.

For years cabinets were formed or ministerial vacancies filled with the mere formal presentation to the sovereign of the names of the new ministers. King Edward has done away with this tradition. He has spent the last few days in constant discussion with Mr. Balfour as to the advisability from the point of view of the national welfare of Balfour's suggested appointments. Ministers now holding office and those nominated for office have been summoned to Balmoral to join in these conferences and all have been subjected to a degree of interrogation such as has surprised even those who knew King Edward intimately as the prince of Wales.

To such an extent is King Edward holding his power of veto in reserve that now he is almost regarded by the inner circles as more the cabinetmaker than Mr. Balfour himself. Though with his usual tact, the king has refrained from expressing any political views or infringing the initiative belonging to the ministers, but this has not prevented him from expressing his genuine desire, amounting almost to a command, that steps be taken to remedy the scandals in the army administration revealed by the report of the South African war commission and insisting that the new cabinet shall be one adapted to deal with that question.

Dealing with the surmise on some of the foregoing points the Morning Advertiser Wednesday said: "The king has in this national emergency resolved to play the part of a ruler instead of being content with that of a figurehead."

Meantime every detail of the negotiations for filling up the vacancies in the cabinet are submitted to the king, who for the time being has transformed Balmoral into the political center of the empire which, owing to the unusual influences at work, several surprises may emanate. Whatever the results may be they can safely be attributed to a large extent to the king's interest in the crisis.

Cotton's squadron. In case it is decided to send the entire squadron to the east coast of Africa on this mission it will not be necessary for them to leave their present stations for at least a month.

CHICAGO MYSTERY.

Bodies of Man and Woman Found Dead in the Street.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Early Wednesday morning the dead bodies of Harriet Elizabeth Weber and Innocent Talamini, a marble cutter, were found on Lexington avenue just south of 54th street. Both had been shot twice, and while there are indications that the man shot the woman and then killed himself, there are other features to the case that make it somewhat mysterious. Arthur M. Laurie, with whom the dead woman had made her home, will be held by the police until after the inquest. There is no evidence connecting him with the shooting, but he is detained as a witness. The shots that killed the man and woman were heard by residents of the neighborhood at about 1 o'clock Tuesday night. No move was made to investigate the shooting, however, and nothing was known of the tragedy until Wednesday morning when the bodies were discovered by a newspaper carrier.

The body of the woman was identified in a short time as that of "Mrs. Laurie," but when Laurie was brought to the police station he said that she was not his wife and that he did not know the man whose body was found with hers.

Wednesday night in going through the effects of Miss Weber an envelope was found addressed evidently in the handwriting of a man to Innocent Talamini. In seeking Talamini to find what he might know of the woman or the shooting, the officers identified the dead man as Talamini himself. No cause is known why Talamini should have shot the woman, but she had told several of her friends the day before of a Jew who had been following her and of whom she was afraid. Talamini has a Hebrew countenance, and it is the general theory that he shot her because she refused to marry him.

The woman when found had been shot twice through the left arm and through the breast. Talamini was shot twice, once through the neck and once upward through the chin, the bullet coming out at the top of his head.

In the man's hand was a revolver with four chambers discharged, accounting for the four shots fired. The people living in the neighborhood where the tragedy occurred declare that more than four shots were fired, and one bullet crashed through the window of Mrs. S. Caswell, at 5410 Lexington avenue. These facts have led the police to believe that there may have been a third party to the shooting, although there is so far no direct proof that such was the fact. The Weber woman is a native of Detroit, Mich., having come here from that city several years ago.

Those present at the funeral say that when brought into the church the coffin was draped with an American flag and the preacher ordered the flag removed.

ANTI-SEMITIC RIOTS.

Jews Brutally Clubbed or Bayoneted by Russian Soldiers.

Altogether Nearly 400 Houses and Shops Were Wholly or Partially Wrecked at Gomel, Russia—Christians Took Part.

Gomel, Government of Mohile, Russia, Monday, Sept. 21.—Anti-Semite riots occurred here on September 11, and were renewed for several days. The riots were smaller but perhaps more remarkable than those which took place at Kishineff, because the police and military openly sided with the plunderers and murderers, the "Pogromshiks," as the Russians called them. The troops supported by many educated and well-to-do Christians formed a movable shield behind which the "Pogromshiks" ruthlessly demolished the Jewish homes and shops and cruelly clubbed such Jews as fell into their hands, leisurely proceeding from street to street and district to district as they did so.

The commerce and industry of Gomel is largely in the hands of the Jewish population, numbering 25,000. Few of the residents are wealthy, but none are paupers. The Jewish artisans incline to socialism.

The trouble began on September 11, a holiday, "the day the beheading of John the Baptist," in a wrangle in the fruit and fish markets between Moujiks, peasants, and Jews. The wrangle ended in a free fight in which many were wounded. One Moujik succumbed to his injuries.

The Moujiks demanded vengeance and employed the following days, Saturday and Sunday, in inflaming the anti-Semite agitation, the leaders being an officer, Pensky, and a rich merchant, Petrachenko.

Everybody knew that a pogrom would occur on Monday and the Jews appealed for protection to Chief of Police Ravsky, who summoned an infantry regiment from its summer encampment. Thus there were 1,000 soldiers in the town. At luncheon hour on Monday the anti-Semite railway workmen to the number of some hundreds began an organized attack on the Jewish houses in Zamovkaya street, sacking them and demolishing or spoiling the bulky articles by soaking them with kerosene. Police Chief Ravsky had placed policemen and troops on the street, but they acted as though they were intended to protect the "Pogromshiks" from interference. Jews, who tried to cross the lines to rescue their co-religionists, were brutally clubbed by the soldiers with guns, bayoneted or arrested. Meanwhile, recruits for the "Pogromshiks" poured steadily over the bridge leading from the railway workshops.

Altogether nearly 400 houses and shops were wholly or partly wrecked, the windows smashed, the blinds and frames being splintered and every scrap of furniture and effects, even the samovars, sewing machines, mirrors and lamps destroyed or stolen. The Jews, who did not take refuge with compassionate Christians, or conceal themselves in cellars, were severely beaten and in many cases dangerously wounded. Some young Jews, exasperated by the action of the police and the troops, armed themselves with any available weapons and tried to force their way to the threatened houses. One Jewess attempted to shoot a non-commissioned officer and 25 revolver shots were heard in the vicinity of the bazaar, but were apparently fired in the air, as no one was hurt.

During the rioting a number of Jews were killed.

TO FIGHT UNION LABOR.

New England Jewelers and Silversmiths Sign An Agreement.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 24.—Three hundred members of the New England Manufacturing Jewelers and Silversmiths' association have signed an agreement which provides for the shutting out of all union men in the event that the labor officials should declare a strike in any one or all of the jewelry shops in this vicinity. This action is the result of the agitation recently made by the union for a nine-hour day and other concessions. The threatened strike did not materialize. The agreement stipulates that any union man who strikes against any member of the association must not be re-employed.

T. P. WOODS.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON and his methods were criticised by the Presbytery in Philadelphia.

The Ohio democratic platform is being severely criticised by a lot of democrats who never lose an opportunity to vote for republican candidates and policies.

The first of the campaign buttons has the word "Equality" written across its face and represents Booker Washington and President Roosevelt lunching together. The free lunch idea is a great thing to catch the colored vote.

BILL OWENS' reply to Governor Beckham's strictures is just what might have been expected of a blackguard, a blackleg and a plug-ugly. There is neither sense nor point in it.—Lexington Democrat.

At the time of his nomination for Governor, it was the common expression that Col. Belknap was the weakest that could have been made. Subsequent events have justified that opinion. He is too cold-blooded to excite much enthusiasm.—Georgetown Times.

ONE of the most successful strokes of Governor Beckham's administration and one which has greatly disturbed the Republicans, was the collection of the state of Kentucky's Civil and Spanish War Claim from the U. S. Government. With the money which was collected the Kentucky soldiers, who served in the Spanish War received back pay which they had never expected to get but which was rightfully coming to them, and with the money which had been due the state ever since the Civil War, the entire state debt was wiped out.

CHURCH CHIMES.

—Yesterday was the Jewish 'ast, Gadoich.

—Rev. E. H. Rutherford will preach at Palmer's School House, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

—Elder J. B. Briney, of Missouri, will preach at the Christian Church, Sunday, morning and night.

—Rev. J. H. Hopper and Rev. Dr. E. H. Rutherford will begin a meeting at Palmer's school house, Thursday evening, Oct. 1st, at 7:30 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

—The Maysville Ledger in publishing some historical facts in regard to the Neptune Fire Company of that city, reveals the fact that Dr. E. M. Snodder, of Carlisle, was a fireman in 1850. He is still trying to keep people from being injured by fire, says the Mercury.

—Rev. John S. VanMeter, D. D., who arrived from New York City last week, will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. Sunday, at the First Presbyterian church. As the main auditorium will not be completed until next week, the services will be held Sunday in the Sunday School room down stairs.

Dr. VanMeter is a son of Solomon VanMeter, who died in 1859, on the Bryan Station pike, three miles North east of Lexington, and is a brother of Isaac and Prewitt VanMeter, of Clark county, and Solomon L. VanMeter, of Fayette. After graduating at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., he practiced law at Lexington, Ky., for seven years, serving four years as County Attorney of Fayette. During his twenty-five years ministry in Kentucky, Arkansas and Missouri, he has made three pastoral changes. All of his churches have prospered and have reluctantly given him up.

He will preach for the church in this city at least until the meeting of Presbytery at Frankfort in October, when he will be taken to install him as pastor here, if, as is more than likely, he and the congregation shall still desire to have that permanent relation established.

POPULAR OFFICIAL.—The Maysville Bulletin, says: The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Binzel will learn with sincere regret that they are soon to leave Maysville.

Mr. Binzel has been appointed passenger and freight agent of the L. & N. at Paris and will enter upon his new position there Nov. 1. He has had charge of the company's business at this point for a number of years, and has proved one of the most popular agents ever in charge of the Maysville end of this great railroad system. His transfer comes as a promotion, as the Paris agency pays more and is a more important one, two branches of the system connecting at that point.

While the friends of this clever and ever courteous and accommodating gentleman regret to see him leave Maysville, yet they feel that his transfer to Paris means eventually something still better for him at the hands of the company.

Mr. Binzel will succeed Mr. Frank B. Carr, who is to take charge of the company's agency at Lexington.

STATE MEETING

Of the Christian Church Held In This City This Week Largely Attended.

Our city has extended a hearty reception to the church workers this week. The homes of most of our citizens have been opened wide to the visiting delegates to the state meeting of the Christian Church, and nothing but genuine hospitality, for which our dear people are noted, has been extended.

The crowd in attendance has been a large one and notable workers of the church throughout the state have been in attendance.

The meetings have been held in the new and handsome Christian Church, and the edifice has been thronged each day and night with large crowds.

Monday evening was devoted to the interest of the young people's work. Mr. R. E. Moss, pastor of the Maysville church, spoke in behalf of the Endeavors. Mrs. Louella Wilcox St. Clair, the new President of Hamilton College, at Lexington, also delivered an address.

Tuesday was devoted to reports and addresses. C. C. Smith, H. J. Derthick and others were present. All were delighted to hear Prof. Wm. Forrest, the returned missionary from Calcutta, India. Rev. J. W. McGarvey, President of the Bible College, gave the morning Bible studies.

Wednesday morning and night the missionary convention was held, and on Thursday, the Sunday School Convention.

To-day has been set apart for the celebration of the centennial of the old Cane Ridge Church, known as the "Cradle of the Christian Denomination," and situated in that portion of Bourbon county termed "The Garden Spot of the World." The Centennial Day exercises will be held in a beautiful woodland near the historic church building in which Alexander Campbell, the founder of the denomination, expounded the gospel on numerous occasions. To day, there will be set an old-fashioned dinner for those who attend.

At the meeting at Cane Ridge to day, J. B. Briney, of Missouri; A. Philput, of Indianapolis, and President Burrus A. Jenkins, of Kentucky University, will be the chief speakers of the day.

Altogether, the meeting has been one of much interest and much enjoyed by all in attendance.

WANTED.—Experienced waist and skirt maker; one that can put up skirt. No other need apply.

MISS K. O. KEARNS,
160 N. Upper Street,
Lexington, Ky.

The Interurban Railway.

The third new car for the Paris & Lexington Interurban road has arrived. The new cars are said to be an improvement on other cars now in use. The vestibules can be entered at either side, the aisles are wider, the cars are wider and yet by clever designing are made to appear narrower and smaller than the old. They set lower on their trucks than the old cars and look more like big city cars than the more cumbersome interurban type. The length is practically the same and the seating capacity the same as the old. They are naturally brighter, cleaner, myre attractive and more inviting looking.

So far as speed is concerned they are quite fast, if not faster than the old style cars.

Every effort is being made to get the line open Oct. 1st, and the gangs of men now working on the trolley line, the connecting tracks and other final details are pushing the work.

If the line is opened before cool weather sets in it will mean a goodly increase in pleasure riding and a corresponding increase in the company's receipts, in connection with the road now running to Georgetown.

WALKING SKIRTS.—A new line of walking skirts just received at Harry Simon's.

Mercy!

The Carlisle Mercury, in commenting on the game of ball, played at that place last Wednesday afternoon, says that it was the scrappiest game that they had experienced this season, and that the boys from Paris, "not true Bourbon bred boys," however, seemed to think they were among a set of heathens. This is too bad. While the boys from the blackberry district may not be exactly heathens, they certainly know how to kick and kick hard. The Paris boys say they are willing to meet them any time designated and give them some instructions in the art of playing ball.

ATTENTION.—Flexibone Corsets and Star Brand shoes are the best made. See our advertisement elsewhere in the News and call on them.

FREEMAN &amp; FREEMAN.

Miss Ingels Rehearsing.

The Lexington Democrat, says: Miss Marguerite Ingels, a very handsome and talented young lady, well-known in political and theatrical circles, is the city rehearsing with her company in which she will star this fall and winter. Miss Ingels is possessed of historic ability, of a very high order, and wherever she has appeared on the stage she has won the highest encomiums of press and public.

HAY AND RYE WANTED.—Highest market price paid for hay and rye.

Kentucky's $20,000 Futurity.

With an entry list unparalleled in its history, the Ky. Futurity demands attention upon all sides. From all over the country comes report of what this, that or the other eligible has done in trials. And so, already speculation is rife as to the probable winner. That it will be the greatest Futurity ever contested is a matter of fact.

A $30,000 purse will attract the best three-year-olds of the season, and with 40 other races on the programme, Lexington's trotting carnival this season will eclipse all others. The dates, Oct. 6th to 17th, render it possible for all the Grand Circuit horses to contest, and practically all are entered here.

A Great Sale of Women's Skirts and Suits.

An Event Without A Parallel. Prices Cut to Half and Less.

We propose to make a clean sweep of everything in our Ready-to-Wear Department remaining from the Spring Stock. The volume of business done in our big Cloak Department during the past season exceeded anything we have ever known. To do this required an enormous stock, and what has remained with us is accounted for by that reason. The splendid results from increased sales enable us to offer at this season of the year tremendous reductions in order to make room for the big Fall line which is now pouring in daily.

We could easily dispose of these Suits and Separate Skirts at the prices below mentioned to any large dealer in a less up-to-date community, but we prefer to give the benefit of a great bargain to our own trade. Those who are our patrons at regular prices shall reap the advantage of this remarkable reduction.

The savings are real and positive. The goods come only from high-class manufacturers. The variety is still broad and satisfying.

Plan of Sale:

We have divided the stock of 109 suits into 4 lots, and we give herewith specific information concerning each lot:

LOT NO. 1.—Tailored Suits.—Former prices $12.50 to $17.50. Closing Out Price $5.00 per suit.

This lot consists of 14 Suits, sizes 32 to 38, in different colors and styles, mostly blacks, tans, greys and browns. They would be a grand bargain at $10.00, but at $5.00 are virtually given away.

LOT NO. 2.—54 Tailored Suits.—Former prices $18.00 to $22.50. Closing Out Price $4.75 per suit.

This lot consists of fine Cheviots, Broadcloths, Scotch Mixtures, Checks and Invisible Plaids, coats silk-lined throughout, none of them older than the Summer of 1903. The range of sizes is complete. The colors are plain blacks, plain blues, plain browns and mixtures.

LOT NO. 3.—34 Tailored Suits.—Former prices $25.00 to $30.00. Closing Out Price $4.75 per suit.

This lot represents the choicest and best things we had. We sold 135 of these suits in similar styles at regular prices, but the remainder will have to go at once, hence this great price shrinkage of less than half. All sizes are in the lot somewhere, and the colors are blacks, blues, browns and mixtures.

LOT NO. 4.—Only 7 Suits in This Lot.—Formerly sold as $35.00 to $45.00. Closing Out Price $19.75 per suit.

These suits represent the remainder of what were the most charming and exclusive creations in our big style store. They are made out of the finest Vicunas, Doeskins, Voiles and Zibeline Cheviots, and at 50 cents on the dollar will be grabbed at by women who want something exceptionally good. The sizes range from 32 to 36. The colors are mostly solid blacks and blues.

WHEN I'M CALLED.

O'er the dark and swollen waters
Should my boat be called to glide,
And I see the forms of loved ones
Waiting on the other side.
Shall I fear the dashing billows
As they foam on every hand,
While before me streams the glory
Of His own dear promised land?

Should the night be dark and dreary,
And no stars be in the sky,
When I'm called to pass the river
Shall I hear the watchman's cry?
When He calls me to come over,
Cross the torrent cold and wild,
Shall I rear my loving Father
Since I am his trusting child?

When the mists hang o'er the river
Hiding all the waters blue,
And the lovely hills of Canaan
Are quite hidden from my view,
Shall I doubt my trusty Pilot,
Shall I fear the misty wave
When I know that He is with me,
And His arm is strong to save?

Should the day be bright with sunlight
When He bids me to come home,
And the banquet board is ready
And awaiting me to come;
Shall I fear the invitation
Of His loving, gracious word,
Or with joy shall I go over
To be ever with my Lord?

CHAPTER I. ARRIVALS.

The flower-laden breeze of late May, carrying with it a threat of falling weather, came in through the wide casements, now puffing out the dimity curtains in white clouds, and again drawing them against the tiny panes of the long French windows, which had been set ajar that Miss Ellery might enjoy the balmy air and also superintend work in the flower-garden upon which they opened.

One need not wish to look upon a prettier picture than this young mistress made as she stood that morning by a little deal table in the great Ellery dining room, washing with her own hands the breakfast china and at the same time issuing orders to the negro slaves.

A huge, bibbed homespun apron protected her figured cotton morning dress, a white kerchief was demurely crossed beneath her chin, and a snowy cap sat coquettishly upon her brown head, in which gold and red fought hard for supremacy. Her sleeves were rolled above the elbow, displaying a handsome arm, while a small, slipped foot now and then tapped imperiously upon the polished floor as she gave some command.

The room itself was receiving its morning cleaning. The druggist had been taken up from the polished floor and was having a good beating out on the lawn at a sufficient distance to keep the dust from flying into the house; Aunt Rachel was rubbing down the great mahogany dining-table and the smaller breakfast-table; Gabriel was polishing the silver; Judith was looking over the table linen that had been used for breakfast and the last night's supper to see if there were stains that should be removed or worn places darned before it was consigned to the laundry; Enos was at work upon the silver and glass candlesticks, while in the garden outside Uncle Peter was busy among the flowers, singing the while at the top of his cracked old voice.

In the detached kitchen, some 20 feet from the house, Aunt Esther and Aunt Deborah were sending up quavering contraltos in rivalry of Uncle Peter's bass, accompanying themselves with the rattle of pots and pans, and interrupting now and then to shout a command or a threat at their crew of picaninny assistants.

The watchful eyes of the mistress were everywhere, for the hand which held the domestic reins during her stepmother's absence was not lax, and it took no little vigilance to keep that army of lazy, grown-up black children to their tasks.

"Uncle Peter," she called, in her mellow southern voice, "methinks you have been resting full ten minutes upon that rake. Is the sun then so hot that you cannot work?" "Hist, missy," whispered the old darky, sticking his white cotton head in through the window, "thah's a band of Britishahs ridin' up de av'new. Ole Petah hab bin watchin' der red coats tro' de trees."

"And if so," said the mistress calmly, as she placed her china upon a silver tray and herself carried it to the china-closet, a stoop-shouldered affair with glass-knobbed doors below and an overhanging shelf above on which were arranged such pieces as were kept out for display and could not find room on the tall, columned sideboard laden with silver candlesticks and glass decanters, gold-chased tankards, and fat goblets, "and if so," she repeated, "what of it? Are we such poor royalists that we need fear his majesty's soldiers? Tut, tut, pick up your cloth, Aunt Rachel, and go on with your cleaning. Think you the British will know that you remember Mr. Washington in your prayers, and in your heart espouse the cause of your old master, my Uncle Ellery?"

For lately Jane's father had bought from his brother a number of blacks whom that patriot's circumstances, reduced by the war and his espousal of the American cause, would not permit him longer to support. Aunt Rachel and Gabriel were among these, and they had brought the principles they had borrowed from their old master into their new home.

Just then Sampson appeared at the door leading from the dining room into the hall and announced in his most expressionless tones, while he held himself like a very stiff paste-board figure—

"Maj. Broadus to see Miss Ellery." Jane knew that he had been too well trained by her stepmother to voluntarily bring a stranger into her presence with so little warning, and she surmised the British officer had persisted in following at his heels. It was somewhat haughtily, therefore, that she drew down the sleeves of her gown and turned to meet the visitor, who stood in the entrance.

He looked both astonished and embarrassed as her beautiful young face came within range of his vision. Evidently, he had not expected to be confronted by so much youth and loveliness. "Pardon me, but are you—ah—the mistress of the house?" he asked hesitatingly.

"The temporary mistress, yes," she answered. "My father and mother are from home. Is there aught I can do for you?"

"Col. Bessemer bids me present his compliments and request the privilege of resting his troops here for a short space. He also desires me to express the hope that, inasmuch as he understands your family to be loyal subjects of the king, you may not object to providing himself and his officers with breakfast, since they have been upon the road the entire night, after fighting a hard battle yesterday, without either food or rest."

"Certainly, I shall comply with his request," Jane answered. "It is not the rule of my father's house to turn away anyone hungry, be he British or American."

The officer raised his eyebrows at this and stiffened perceptibly. It did not agree with his ideas of loyalty that American sympathizers should be fed by adherents of the king; but Jane was a contrary jade, and while she was never so devoted a royalist as when she was talking to revolutionist neighbors and relatives, she never came so near being —NOT FORGETTING TO LIFT HIS HAT AND WAVE HIS HAND.

American in her sympathies as when she was thrown with British or Tories. It might be because her father was dubbed a timeserver, even by those who once had loved him best and respected him most, that the girl had developed this contradictoriness. Certainly, it was the occasion for many a passage at arms between herself and her tory stepmother.

The officer heard her give orders for the preparation of a good meal, and then went back to his colonel.

As Bessemer entered a wave of astonishment swept over his florid face, and he hurried forward to greet his hostess. "Miss Ellery—you?" he cried. "Ah, how fortune has blessed me with her smile this morning in directing me hither and permitting me to renew an acquaintance so delightful!" He raised her hand to his lips as he spoke with a gallantry of which few were greater masters.

Jane swept him a deep courtesy, while an ironical smile played about her lips. "I feel honored that Col. Bessemer should remember me," she remarked.

"Remember you? As though I could forget you," he exclaimed in a low tone. "Your image is engraved too deep upon my heart for that. It is true, I had forgot—nay, I could never have known, for it would be impossible to forget aught which concerned you—that your home was in this vicinity, and to come thus unexpectedly upon you is the happiest moment of my life."

The cynical smile did not leave Jane's lips. She had listened to Col. Bessemer's flowery speeches before; yet she was a woman, and she could not help a flattered thrill even while she was saying to herself, "I wonder how many women he has spoken to thus since I met him last in Philadelphia?"

"But permit me, dear lady, to have the honor of presenting my officers to you." He turned towards those who had accompanied him as he spoke. They had remained in a little knot around the door while he was greeting Jane, and about their mouths a reflection of the smile her lips had worn. They also had seen their commander kiss the hands of beautiful women before, and while they could not hear the speeches he poured into her ears, they could imagine somewhat the purport of them.

The breakfast was a good one, for the plantation was large and well looked after, and there was always enough in its storehouses to feed a regiment. There were great platters of broiled bacon and chicken fried in that delicious style which has descended as a heritage to the south from those colonial days; there were venison steaks and sugar-cured ham; there were plates piled high with golden-brown biscuits and hoe-cakes; there were the syrup of sugar-cane, and berries fresh from the garden beds; there was an abundance of milk and cream and butter; there were coffee and tea—all set off with the brightest of silver and china that had been brought from over the seas and was well-nigh priceless, so precious that none but the hands of the mistresses of the house were allowed to wash it.

A bountiful, attractive repast, and one the British officers were in a mood to enjoy to the full; nor were they minded to be interrupted at it, yet such was destined to be the case, for, as they sat at table, a volley of shots was heard and a great commotion ensued.

Bessemer and his companions sprang to their feet and rushed to the door with such impetuosity that it was well the table was the stout piece it was, else it must have been overturned in the excited jostling. Outside, the soldiers, who had been loitering at ease upon the ground eating the rations they carried, had started up and stood at attention.

Bessemer, red with excitement and full of energy, as was his wont, ordered his horse and, jumping into the saddle, clove the air with quick commands. Into this confusion there dashed a single horseman clad in the blue-and-yellow continental uniform. Jane, standing within the broad side-porch, watching the scene with interest and not a little curiosity to know the cause of the tumult, turned pale when her eyes fell upon him.

Surrounded by redecoats, who were bringing their muskets to their shoulders to fire, the horseman swept the lines with his eyes, saw a thin place in their formation, spurred his horse towards it, and lifting the animal until it seemed to literally spring over the heads of the astonished soldiers, dashed forward, not forgetting, as he passed the porch where Jane stood, to lift his hat and wave his hand.

The girl, with white face, strained her eyes to gaze after him as he disappeared in the clump of woods to the left of the house amid a storm of bullets.

CHAPTER II. THE FIGURE IN GRAY.

The horseman's daring was so great that it had taken the breath from Bessemer and his men. Tempted to pursue, the British colonel yet feared a trap. He had heard much of the ambush warfare waged by southern revolutionists, and he had no desire to have his troops caught in an ambuscade. It did not seem to him that even one of these dare-devil southerners would risk his life in so reckless a manner without some definite object in view; and what object could he have unless it were to tempt the British to pursue him and thus lead them into the arms of a superior American force? Besides his own troops, he had many prisoners taken in yesterday's battle to be guarded.

Calling his officers about him, he consulted with them hastily. Almost to a man they were against pursuit. Perhaps the half-finished breakfast awaiting them had something to do with the unanimity of opinion, for your Britisher loved his food then as he does to-day.

So back to breakfast they went, and Jane was so relieved at their decision that she ordered Aunt Deborah, an expert hand, to bake them some of her famous, crisp-edged, golden centered batter cakes to help repair any injury the breakfast might have suffered from the interruption.

"Reckless, reckless Godfrey," she was saying to herself, as she bade Gabriel pass the syrup to her guests and herself filled their coffee cups, "will he never learn discretion? Why should he so risk his life out of mere bravado?"

But, indeed, she wronged the horseman. Though he was quite capable, as she well knew, of having ridden into the British lines out of foolhardy defiance and because he loved to take his life in his hand for the thrill such adventure gave him, yet in this instance he was guiltless of so mad a piece of folly.

On the contrary, he had been as much surprised to find himself in the midst of so large a body of redecoats as the British had been to see him. One of the few Americans who had escaped from the fight of yesterday, he was flying through the country as fast as his horse could carry him, striving to get together a band of American sympathizers to revenge Bessemer's refusal of quarter to the Americans at that battle.

This mission bringing him close to his own home, he stopped there to see his parents for a few moments, and was besought by his sister to carry a note to her dear gossip, Jane, since his route lay past the Ellery place. He was at the mouth of the lane which led to the Ellery plantation when he came upon a couple of scouts whom Bessemer had sent out to reconnoiter. Thinking them but stragglers from the British army, and having no idea the main body was so close, he set upon the soldiers and pursued them as they retreated towards the mansion, firing as he went. It was these shots which startled the British from their ease, and before the young man could realize his predicament he was facing the stern, straight lines of Bessemer's dragoons with their leveled weapons staring at him.

As the horse went pell-mell through the woods, taking the underbrush and stumps that came in his way until he could find the bridge path, his rider looked back over his shoulder, on the watch for pursuers. When he became convinced that none followed, he dropped back nonchalantly into his saddle and shrugged his shoulders contemptuously.

"Upon my soul, what cowards these British be at heart, for all their splutter and their murderous ways," he muttered, out of the insolence born of his temporary triumph.

He rode on through the woods, humming the snatch of a patriotic song, but when the moment's exhilaration had passed his brow was overcast, for his errand had not been accomplished, and it ill suited his pride to leave his commission unperformed. Furthermore, on the road he had learned that Jane's father and mother were from home, and that she was alone save for the black servants and the white overseer and his family, whose house was fully a quarter of a mile from the mansion.

Under other circumstances this would have caused him no uneasiness, for he well knew the devotion of the slaves to Jane, but the presence of Bessemer and his soldiers perturbed him much. His distrust of the British colonel was great, and vastly did he dislike the thought of Jane being alone in her father's house with only servants to protect her against possible British insolence.

If he could only have a word with Aunt Rachel or Jane's black mammy, two faithful souls, and warn them to keep a careful watch over their mistress's welfare until he could bring a force to oust the interlopers, his mind would be easier. It would well suit his mood to ride back to the Ellery mansion, dash through the opposing redecoats again, snatch a word with Jane or some of her devoted dependents, and gallop away.

"By the Gods, it could be done too," he told himself, his blood quickening at the notion.

Back at the Ellery place the officers had eaten their fill, rested their men and horses, and had really no excuse for lingering, yet not one of them, from the Colonel down, but was loath to go.

"ANNIE RANDALL" BERRIES.

The Kind a Chicago Man Purchased from a Huckster in Baltimore.

A Chicago man who was in Baltimore recently, according to the Record-Herald, says:—

"They have a strange manner of speech in that old town. One day a huckster drove through the streets yelling: 'Fraish Annie Randall berries.'"

"The fruit that he was peddling looked nice, and I became interested in Annie Randall. I wanted to know something about her. I've heard of beautiful young women giving up society and making fortunes out of truck farms, and it occurred to me that Annie might be one of these. In my mind's eye I could see the gentle maiden sitting on her broad veranda overlooking the fruitful acres where the faithful servants picked the luscious berries that were to give joy to the unfortunate toilers in the great hot cities of the land. As I mused the huckster kept on yelling: 'Fraish Annie Randall berries.'"

"Finally I decided to ask him about Annie. I felt a romantic interest in the lady, and could not withstand the temptation to satisfy myself concerning her beauty."

"After buying a quart of the berries I said to the huckster:—

"Where is Miss Randall's farm?" "He looked curiously at me and replied:—

"I don't know her."

"How does it happen then that you are peddling her berries?"

"These berries are from Annie Arundel county."

The Force of Imagination.

Max O'Rell died as he had lived, passing humorous messages about among his friends. During his tour through Australia some years ago death was once close upon him, as it seemed to him at the time. Lying in bed one night in a Bush hostelry, worried by mosquitoes and thinking of the snakes against which he had been warned, he became aware of the presence alongside him of a cold, treacherous snake, probably a death adder, as it was only about three feet long. Death from the bite of this playful adder is rapid and painless, and the Frenchman recorded afterwards his reflection that it was better perhaps to die that way than of gout or rheumatism. After an hour of agony, however, he slipped out of bed, struck a light and went about the room searching for the favorite walking stick he had carried specially for defense against reptiles. After a weary and nervous hunt he found it at last among the disordered bedclothes!—London Chronicle.

Knighted a Loaf of Beef.

Though the truth of the story that King James I. of England once knighted a loaf of beef is disputed, the house in which the ceremony is said to have occurred is pointed out as well as the table on which the sirloin lay. The scene of the historic jest lies between Highgate's park and Chingford, near London. It is a curious house with quaint low-pitched ceilings and a fine garden with fruit trees of great size. It was on his return from one of his hunting expeditions in Epping forest that the British Solomon is said to have given practical proof of his favor for the roast beef of old England.

—J. E. Cahill, of Mason county, who raised an acre of tobacco under canvas, also concluded to experiment with growing tomatoes under canvas, and finds it a success far beyond all anticipations. Those raised under canvas matured much earlier and are at least twice as large as those on the outside, and superior in every respect.

—Horses and mules in Louisiana are fed largely on rice, bran, molasses and some cowpea hay. —The Burley Tobacco Association, which was formed one year ago to fight the American and Continental Tobacco Companies will start an independent tobacco warehouse in Lexington. President W. B.
